

Now don't let this bother you—we will discuss more about sex later. For now, just remember. you need to demonstrate early on that you are very sexual. Let he her know she will have pleasures in all forms and variety. Women love sex more than men do, but at least in the present society most women are not open to go and meet men for sexual pleasures, something all men have liberty to do. So she needs to make sure she has a partner who is sexually open-minded and adventurous.

You relay this to her by being comfortable with the topic of sex and getting sexual early on. I touch women and get sexual with them because I truly believe there is nothing wrong with that and that we are born to be sexual. If a woman tests me on that she finds congruence. I never convince a woman she should have sex with me, but I never back down from making sexual advances either. They know they can trust me and that I will never pull any tricks, for I have many more options, but because I am a man and am attracted to her, I will try my best to get in to her pants, of course without being needy. Women love this frame!

The above paragraph is something I actually often vocalize and tell woman so they know what to expect. Don't hesitate to be sexual. You will lose big points if you do.

Putting Values into action

Now that you know what key values to demonstrate, you use your fashion, body language, and tonality along with few powerful routines/stories to demonstrate these higher values.

So I am taking the transition for the opener “have you ever stood anyone up” and marking the high values to give you an idea. The text in red will discuss the values in the routine.

Transition to Have you guys ever stood anyone:

So check this out! Few months back I went to this fashion show for hair products in San Francisco put together by L’Oreal. (I have a life and I go to interesting places and events.)

A very good friend of mine also my old hairstylist invited me to this show. (I have good friends who like me and I do activities with them)

Who by the way is also a great hairstylist. Before I met my current hairstylist, who was recommended by him, I never let anyone else touch my hair. I am very fussy about who touches my hair. In fact believe it or not I used to fly to him every month from New York to get a cut. (Interesting facts about me. I pay attention to fashion and grooming. I have enough money to fly from NY to SF every month to get a hair cut)

Anyways, during the show I met this French girl. She was one of the models and we hit it off instantly. (I date beautiful women and beautiful women like me)