

- Hug her while saying, “I don't like you at all”.
- Kiss her/hold her tight while saying, “God I hate you”.
- After you make out, pull back and make a funny face, say “Nah, wasn't good, let's try again.” Then again, “I didn't enjoy it.” Make sure you are over expressive so she knows that you are enjoying it and just saying this to keep her kissing. They love it.

Something I do if I see a woman on regular basis or know that I will see her on regular basis is I totally ignore her like she does not exist. Just fulfill the minimum protocol required and that's it. It bothers women a lot! They are used to getting attention and here is one guy who talks to everyone around her but not her. I cannot tell you how many women I have seduced from work place and class room by using this technique.

Women feel rejected and insecure if you don't pay attention to them or fall for their games. I learned this when I used to help a friend at his liquor store. I had no game at the time, so out of insecurity, I would ignore these beautiful women who would come to the store only to find out that by doing this I was destroying their game and making them work harder to get my attention. I saw everything at this store. Women asking me if their boobs were attractive to men, women who would tell their boyfriends the story that they fell in the bank and were naked at the time, women singing and crying in front of me to see if I would take the bait. They would wait until they reached the counter before they would start their act. I would still volunteer my hours at this place
