

Day VS. Night

Day Game

Approaching women during day time or outside of bars and clubs is known as day game. In my personal opinion day game is very important. I meet more quality women when walking on the street or shopping in the mall and sometimes in the building elevator. If you do not know day game, then most women you meet during the day are lost opportunities.

Night Game

Meeting women inside bars and clubs is commonly referred to as night game. Interacting with women at these venues is much simpler than day game. For starters, they do not have work pressure when they go out socializing at night as opposed to during day time when everyone is on a mission. Most women go to bars and clubs to socialize, so they don't mind a decent approach. Oh and did I mention the alcohol in the blood stream :)

There are very few differences switching from day game to night game. During the day game low energy levels are used as opposed to night game's higher energy. Depending on the time constraint, either direct or indirect approach can be used for day game. However, I personally prefer and recommend direct approach during day game. The objective during day game should be to get an instant date. If that does not happen, then you should take